Instructor: Muhammad Ahsan

National University of Computer and Emerging Sciences Peshawar

Instructions

Prerequisites:
1. Create an account on prezi.com with your email address.
2. Do some practice on Prezi.
3. Understand the components of prezi

Task:
1. Your main task is to decide on any topic of your choice it can be technical or non-technical on which you are going to give presentation in the upcoming lab.
2. Once you have decided on your topic do some preliminary research to get some idea and content about your chosen topic. Make keynotes of these points on which you are going to talk.
3. Now create your presentation on prezi.com about your topic that you have chosen so far. Make sure your presentation should have at least 6 but not more than 8 slides and also each slide should have transition and animation functionality included. You can use any theme or template of your choice but make sure that each slide should have a different layout.
4. Submit your presentation here and do some preparation to give the presentation in the upcoming lab. The more the presentation is attractive the more marks you will get. Both slides and presentation have separate marks so take both things seriously.

Note: Late submission will not be accepted.
